90 Found Guilty of 1952 Riot in Tokyo After Trial Believed World's Longest

TOKYO, Jan. 28 (AP)—A Tokyo district court today found 90 . Persons guilty and acquitted 109 after a trial described as the The trial, which arose from a May Day riot in 1952, started on Feb. 4, 1953.

Two demonstrators were killed by shots fired by police, and more than 2,000 people, including 500 police, were injured in the incident 17 years and nine months ago. Dozens of cars, mostly American-owned, were burned or overturned by the stone-hurling and club-swinging demonstrators as they shouted "Yankee go home."

The incident occurred three days after the signing of the San Francisco peace treaty which ended nearly seven years of allied occupation of Japan. Of the 1232 persons arrested 261 were indicted. Sixteen of these indicted died after the trial began. The 90 convicted today received suspended sentences.

The trial cost the defense and prosecution more than 200 million It entailed 1792 hearings, the summoning of 954 witnesses, the examinations of 1.300 photographs and collection of 3,200 bamboo poles and wooden staves and 1,050 stones for evidence.

Cernik Ousted as Premier; Hardliner Takes Over Post

The central committee meeting, which opened today, is being watched as another test between Mr. Husak and extreme pro-Moscow conservatives. Mr. Husak, a 56-year-old Slovak, has tried to project the image of a centrist holding off the extremists of both sides.

Today's shuffles, involving some obscure men, provided no clear answer to whether Mr. Husak had gained or lost ground in his strategy against the hardliners. Some observers argued that his position was weakened. But the elevation of Mr. Strongal removes him from an important power hase within the party. He remains a presidium member, but he gives up his job as the Communist party chief in the Czech regions of Moravia and Bohemia and as secretary

White House Police Get Jazzy New Dress Uniform

By Nan Robertson

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28 (NYT).-The presidential police force sheepishly saluted Britain's Prime Minister Harold Wilson yesterday while wearing their dazzling new operettalike uniforms ordered by President Nixon and designed by Washington tailor Jimmie Muscatello and the Secret Service.

The total look includes double-breasted white tunics trimmed with gold braid and gold buttons and stiff plastic shakes decorated with the White House crest. The headgear resembles that worn by American drum majors and West German traffic policemen. The next boldest silhouette is the black-hoistered

White House spokesmen said the uniforms, to be worn only on ceremonial occasions, were inspired by Mr. Nixon's impressions of foreign police during his European tour last winter. West Germany was one of the countries he visited.

But Mr. Muscatello, whose dicated strongly that the original idea was his. Besides, he said: "I've never been to Europe—I'm just a country fella" from the coal fields of Cary, West Va_ "and proud of it." He has been a tellor in Washington since 1945.

For the Boys Last summer, wanting to "make something fancy" for the White House gendarmes he thumbed through books on uniforms and designed a bright red model with "double-breasted coat overlap." "I took it to the man in charge of police there." Mr. Muscatello said, "and he looked at me real funny. But I made up a sample anyway and took it back up there to the White House." After several meetings with the Secret Service, during which the red was rejected as too flamboyant, Mr. Muscatello sot an order for 150 uniforms. Neither be nor the White House would say how much they cost.

The belted white tunic, with the presidential seal on the buckle and one sleeve, is worn with the policeman's everyday black trousers, which have a gold stripe down each leg. When ceremonies are over, such as yesterday's welcome to Mr. Wilson on the south lawn, the police again don their modern black jackets and visored caps.

Nervous Pride Yesterday morning, the White House guardians displayed nervousness mixed with a hint of pride as they sidled over to observers and asked "What do

The local citizen's desire for anonymity, he candidly concedes, is prompted by his fear of being branded guilty by association. For the bitterness and tension that inspired normally placed Indonesian troops and peasants to kill their com-patriots persisis to this day.

The predominantly military government under Gen, Suharto aware that these survivors of the anti-Communist holocaust represent a huge problem, both now and for the future.

At present, they are virtual refugees considered by their former neighbors the equal of lepers. Not long ago, 60 freed prisoners returned to jail three days after their release, ex-plaining that they felt safer there than in their native village. But unless they are reintegrated into society, high-ranking government spokesmen ac-knowledge, the prisoners and their families may eventually be induced by Communist leaders to join a new insurgent movement in the years ahead. The trouble, however, is that while this problem is recognized in theory at government echelons, appeals for enlightened action are farely observed by army officers, civilian officials and ordinary people in the prov-

In large measure, the animosity towards alleged Communists in the villages is the result of religious differences combined with the kind of parochial jealousies and rivairies that exist in all small communities.

An Thewareness

The Indonesian Communist party and its affiliated peasant, labor, youth and other associations claimed some 16 million members prior to 1965. Most of those people were not authentic Communists, but ignoraut folk attracted by ntopian promises of prosperity and other offers. Indeed, as an Indo-nesian scholar who has studied the recent episode points out, one of the reasons why thousands of these slieged Communists did not restet the slaughter is that they did not even know they were regarded

Nevertheless, anyone identified with a Communist organisa-tion is an atheist—and atheism is the only sin not forgiven by Islam. Before the coup, more-over, Communist cadres deliberately incensed Meslems by at-tacking their schools and mes-

So, now, looking back, many Moslems see no reason to show charity towards alleged Communists or their families. 'Sinwhile others argue: "If we hadn't killed them, they would have killed us."

Underlying these attitudes as well is the lack of responsibility Indonesians and other Asians generally feel towards people outside their own kinship circle. Or, as a university professor here explains: "This is a cellular society in which loyalties often do not extend beyond the clan or family. Nationalism has not yet produced a sense of social duty." Army Remembers

Aggravating this popular tendency to estracte the sur-vivors of the holocoust is the fact that army officers, who hold authority in most districts, suffer from what might be called a "crocodile pit trauma."

When they launched their coup on the night of Sept. 30, 1965, the Communists murdered six generals and dumped their corpses into a hole known as the "crocodile pit" at a military airfield near Djakarta.

That unusually brutal act left Indonesian Army officers with little inclination to display kindness toward Communists, real or imaginary, In their sweeps through the countryside, therefore, operational troops have been less than discriminating in their killings.

The TWA 747 will carry nearly three times as many ople across the Atlantic in less time and in more comfort in conventional jets.

It has six kitchens.

It has five theaters offering a choice of films, a wide screen and in color.

The seats are roomier and incredibly comfortable.

It is a fantastic aircraft.

And we have built a fantastic terminal

In fact, TWA is the only airline that is built a 747 terminal really ready for ernational passengers.

It is called Flight Wing One.

It is part of the TWA Flight Center New York designed by Eero Saarinen, d recognized as one of the architectural jewels this century.

Our 747's will be able to taxi right up to eterminal.

A hydraulic power system will bring jetways right to the doors of the aircraft.

The jetways will take the passengers from the interior the plane to the interior of the terminal.

Conveyor belts and carousels will handle baggage in record time.

Retreat From Responsibility

Lester B. Pearson, chairman of a special World Bank study committee, warned last year that the faltering performance of foreign assistance donors was creating a "crisis" in international development.

More recently, Jan Tinbergen, the Nobel Prize-winning Dutch economist who heads the UN's Development Planning Committee. predicted worldwide "disaster" if the rich nations failed to respond more generously to the desperate needs of the two-thirds of mankind who are poor.

The fears expressed by these international experts and many others can only be deepened by the miserly $1.8 billion United States foreign-aid appropriations bill approved by House and Senate conferees and adopted by the House Tuesday. Although this belated appropriation for the current fiscal year represents a slight increase over last year's butchered aid bill, it falls $300 million short of President Nixon's too modest request for aid and far short of what the United States could and should spend to maintain its leadership in a responsible international development effort.

In order to spur the self-sustaining economic growth that is now possible in most developing countries and to close the dangerously widening gap between rich nations and poor, the Pearson Committee recommended that developed nations raise their annual foreign-assistance efforts to the equivalent of 1 percent of gross national product by 1975. In response to this urgent appeal, West Germany, Britain, Japan, Canada and some of the Scandinavian countries already have pledged substantial increases in their aid contributions.

The United States, which once set aside 3 percent of its GNP to aid Europe under the Marshall Plan and which is best able to afford a generous foreign-aid budget, has steadily slipped behind. Today the United States is allocating only about .33 percent of its GNP for overseas assistance. That is just one-third of the Pearson recommendation. Once the leader in foreign aid, prodding others to a more generous effort, the United States has now fallen to eighth place among aid donors in relative terms and is still slipping.

President Nixon, who has ominously linked development aid with dafense in his new policy of lowering America's profile abroad, said in his State of the Union message: "To insist that other nations play a role is not a retreat from responsibility, it is a sharing of responsibility." But this year's foreignaid appropriation does not represent a fair United States share of the international effort that is needed to ease the development crisis and stave off disaster. It signifies a shocking retreat from responsibility, one that neither the President nor the people can rightly countenance.

THE NEW YORK TIMES.

Almost exactly 90 percent of the contracts let by the Department of Defense are nonbid, negotiated contracts which guarantee the contractor a profit over and above costs. The various contractors follow various methods of calculating their costs and, since there is no uniform accounting procedure, there is no effective governmental audit of these contracts.

Some contractors have been detected padding expenses in order to further increase their profits. Is it any wonder that defense costs have risen out of all proportion to the nation's security requirements-from only $13 billion before the Korean war, to $50 billion before the Vietnam war and to $80 billion today?

The recommendation of the General Accounting Office that all defense contractors follow uniform accounting procedures should be translated into law. To bring some reason into an irrational, runaway defense budget, Congress will have to arm itself with the expert knowledge required to weigh, to question and to challenge the proposals or the military-industrial complex for launching new weapons systems. As it is, Congress is almost wholly defenseless against the assertions by interested parties that any new weapon is essential to American sur-

The relationship between the weapons manufacturer and the military establishment has been, as some critics have charged, an unhealthily eozy one. The military may dream up the need for a weapon and then the manufacturer tools up to supply the need-at a profit. Or the manufacturer may dream up the idea for a weapon, snggest the need to the military and then tool up to supply it—at a profit. This mutually beneficial, backscratching arrangement excludes any effective check on the arms race.

Several possible checks have been suggested; expansion of the House Appropria- now seems to lie just ahead. At tions Committee to include staff experts on a military matters; setting up a separate research think-tank operation, along the lines of the legislative reference service, which would be available to any member of Congress; establishing a new wing of the General Accounting Office to conduct effectiveness studies of weapons systems and make expert analyses of military proposals,

The subcommittee of the Joint Economie Committee now looking into defense spending, with Sen, Proximire serving ably as chairman, can be counted on to come up with its own recommendation. The nation bination of "protracted war," which must have an accurate audit of military spending to prevent profit-gouging, wasteful cost over-runs and plain chicanery. It planners regard as particularly must also have some independent, expert opinion on whether proposed new weapons systems will really contribute to its security or only to that of the defense-related industry slated to get a contract.

Mirages for Libya

The Mirage sale to Libya has atrongly embittered relations between Paris and Washington, Neither semantic "clarifications," nor the confidence placed in French Ambassador Lucet by his U.S. partners prevented the latter from reacting sharply to the Libvan deal, which they consider a disastrous move and a blow to the credit of the four-power negotiations.

A pacifying gesture is expected from Paris to offset the effect of the Mirage sale to Libya, In the absence of such a gesture, the visit of President Pompidon to the United States will be marked, at best, with the ostensible absence of Jewish notables from the ceremonies organized in his honor or, at worst, by open demonstrations of hostility in the etreets.

-From Le Monde (Paris).

By officially announcing that he was ready to furnish Israel the necessary arms "in case of need," President Nixon provided the first consequence of France's decision to sell 100 Mirages to Libya. # Make or Break in Vietnam's Delta

By Joseph Alsop

W break test, for President Nixon, for South Vietnam's President Thieu, and even for the North Vietnamese Politburo in Hanoi, guess, it should come by the end of March.

It will be such a decisive test for all concerned, simply because Hanoi is clearly unable to expend human cannon fodder at the rate of tens of thousands a month, as 1968 and early 1969. For a few weeks, in late October and early November, preparations began for North Victnamese manpower expenditures on the old scale. But the underlying policy decision was then reversed, obviously because the strain was too great.

Hanol'e new policy is now a commeans classical guerrilla war, plus carefully localized offensive efforts in special areas that Hanoi's war vulnerable. If successful, this policy can be sustained without tha enormous North Vietnamese losses incurred in the "general offensives" of the past.

Enfeebled VC

The new policy is very shrewdly conceived, but it has one crucially weak spot. The Viet Cong ap-paratus in South Vietnam is already so enfeebled that the "protracted war" will certainly fail. unless the localized offensive efforts attain a high, even spectacular degree of success.

These localized offensives, now

WASHINGTON.-The make-or- or-break test. The southern delta, Vietnamese, which is the political where there are no U.S. ground forces, will clearly be the scene of Hanoi's biggest show.

> No less than five North Vietnamese infantry regiments have al-ready infiltrated the delta, where Northern troops never used to operate. The prospect is that the delta will eventually contain six such regiments, with two divisional headquarters, of which one has already been established.

In I Corps, and in the more northerly provinces of II Corps, a subsidiary effort also appears to be planned. Thus the 18th North Victuamese Regiment used to be growing vegetables in the remote mountains. But it has now been moved out again, into the coastal plains of Binh Dinh Province, to attack the pacification effort there.

Decline in Security Already, pacification has been somewhat set back in Binh Dinh and neighboring provinces; and there has been a marked decline in security in certain provinces of the southern delta, as well. Yet President Thien has by no means ignored this serious challenge to the massive progress that has been made in South Vietnam-and especially the southern delta-during the past year.

In particular, he has already made a series of important command changes; and even more important changes are known to be in the making. This means that President Thien is at last attacking, head-on, the last remaining weakness of the South involved.

character of most appointments to higher command positions. It has been a long haul back from the total chaos into which both army and administration were plunged after the assassination of President Diem. This is the final phase, in which fighting leadership is being made the criterion for regimental, divisional and corps commanders,

If Thieu finds fighting leaders of the right quality, there is no reason why Hanoi's planned local offensives, in the delta and elsewhere, cannot be repelled with heavy losses. If that happens, the progress in pacification will begin again. The terrible erosion of the surviving comrades in the surviving comrades in the surviving comrades in the surviving compulsions. Northern more than a surviving compulsions. app fore continue. And the result of the test will be "break" for Hanoi. If Thieu fails in his quest for better fighting leaders, per contra, the result of the test will be "break" for him, and for President Nixon as well. It was not for nothing that the Hanoi war planners chose the southern delta for their strongest thrust.

If those North Vietnamese regiments in the delta are defeated and driven back, it will be clear proof that "Vietnamization" is entirely workable simply because of the absence of U.S. ground troops in the delta. But if the South Vietnamese commanders in the delta fail in the task they must soon undertake, it will also be clear proof that "Vietnamization"

All in all, this is going to be a very high gamble for all who are

Presidential Power and TV

By James Reston

has clearly decided to use the power of the presidency, plus the power of network television, to combat his opponents in the Democrat-controlled Congress and presumably to establish a Republican Congress in November.

This is quite a combination and quite a gamble. Thoughtful observers here have wondered, ever since the inception of nationwide determined President, who had both President Eisenhower had the ability to use television in this way, nedy had the ability and the will ed reason, was afraid of what he called overexposure. President Johnson had the will, but neither the personality nor the ability to use it effectively. But President Nixon, by going to the networks to veto the money bill for Health, Education and Welfare, has indicated both a determination and an ability to use it to appeal to the people over the head of the Congress to achieve his political objectives.

The possibilities and implications of this are worth a little reflection. The President has available in the White House a television studio hooked into the networks. This is necessary for great occasions of state or for emergencies, but it is also available to him whenever he

This, of course, is precisely what the President did in his HEW controversy. He vetoed the bill on television with a flourish. He did not deliver a balanced presidential presentation of the problem, but a one-sided, self-serving and television, what would happen if a self-righteous argument for his veto. It was very effective and very misleading, and it raises questions far more important than the HEW bul.

What about the doctrine of "fairness," which Vice-President Agnew was so concerned about not so long ago? How can senators who oppose the President get "equal time" when they are talking to a halfempty chamber, while the President is arguing his case, from the majesty of the White House, before an audience of millions?

By-Passing Congress

Beyond this, there is a more immediate problem. This is that the President is now by-passing or reaching beyond the Congress to the people, and this is his gamble. He is just going into his second year in the presidency. He has indicated the outlines of his policy -welfare, taxes, crime, conservation and all the rest-but his major proposals have not been voted into

They have to go through the Congress. The Congress is con-Democrats are divided, with a co-operative saint as their leader in ican politics and politicians.

WASHINGTON-President Nixon wants to explain his veto of the the Senate, and a weak and thred tive state as chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

In short, the Democrats are in deep trouble. But nothing will unify them more, or arouse their partisan dander, than a President who tries to ride over their majority by partisan television appeals to the people. This is a provocation to a partisan battle at a time when the country needs a little t! unity to put through many sensible programs the Presic.

After proclaiming in-State of the Union message that "what this nation needs is an example . . of spiritual and moral leadership . . . which would inspire young Americans with a sense of excitement . . ," Nixon, who has been talking about an era of quiet understanding at home, and of negotiation rather than confrontstion abroad, has now gone to the television with a narrow political argument which is building up a real confrontation in a Democratic Congress, whose support he needs for the programs he says are essential to the nation.

It is very odd: a noble, generous State of the Union message one day, and a narrow party speech on television a few days later. All this is a fairly good illustration of why there is so much distrust and trolled by the Democrats. The cynicism in the country, particularly among the young, about Amer-

The Israeli Game Against Nasser

CAIRO.—If Israel's ever-more up in the word "malesh" daring raids into the heart of what, that's life." "Malesh" Egypt are designed to topple President Gamal Abdel Nasser, Israel is almost certainly doomed to disappointment. Instead, the spectacular feats now being performed by Israeli arms are having a different result: making Nasser more reluctant to start peace talks.

The political corollary of the dashing and humiliating Israeli raids seems to be a Nasser buildup at home. Instead of making him politically vulnerable to the revenge-seeking passions of the Egyptian people, who might be expected to make a scapegoat out of Nasser, the Israeli successes so far are doing just the opposite—consolidating Nasser's position. Every scrap of government propaganda is being used to that

The whimsical reaction of an Egyptian housemaid to the loud presence of a low-flying aircraft on the outskirts of Cairo one day last week is symbolic. A Westerner rushed to the door for an auxious

"Don't worry," she said, one of our paper planes."
It was, indeed, one of Nasser's aircraft, an old-style turboprop. But what did she mean,

"paper plane"?"
"We put them up to confuse the enemy." she said. "They are made only of paper, but the Israelis think they are real."

Air-Kill Ratio

It is only a guess how many Egyptians have been taken in by this Alice-in-Wonderland tale spun by Nasser's propaganda doctors to explain away the phenomenal 10-to-1 ratio of air kills that Israeli fighter pilots, now flying U.S.-made Phantoms, have rung up over Egypt since the 1967 six-day war. But it partially explains the lack of anger at Nasser in the teeth of the Israeli attacks now striking within hearing distance of the heart of the capital.

Sympathy for Nasser, not outrage at the humiliating Egyptian reverses, is still the dominant mood. It is strengthened, moreover, by the fatalistic resignation which has been so much a part of the Egyptian psyche for Many of the daylime dresses are both tucked and pleated to look ethereal and feminine. The evening clothes are ettrac-tive for the first time, like the long dress with a bloused top in a fine black and white pen and ink print.

Some of the evening costumes have sleeveless, sweater-like jeweled coats. Shown with them too, is the sculptured, stainless steel jewelry Ungaro This time there are real chas-

On the Antique Trail _Three New Haunts

عكداميد لأصل

By Rona Dobson

BRUSSELS, Jan. 28.—Brussels has a special advantage for antique hunters: It's small. This means that in one leisurely weekend or one well organized day you can comb the mar-ket thoroughly and have time to enjoy it.

Dealers and individual sellers have a tendency to group to-gether under one roof, and there are three excellent covered areas recently opened where wares are displayed with maximum choice and minimum ef-fort for the browser. The Salons Stephanic, 79 Ave. Louise, has been carefully transformed from a private residence in the grand manner into an antiques market with ebout 35 stands in the

The interior staircases, paneling and tapestries, and polished parquet floors have been pre-served as far as possible as a background for good furniture and an interesting mass of Belgium favors the English style, and there are authentic English pieces, some with a strong nautical flavor, like the big sea-chest for 23,000 Belgian francs ($450), or a seagoing officer's desk, trim and uncluttered in line and the brass ship's lamp with weighted pen-dant so that if hung on the wall it can swing to counter the motion of rough seas, at 1,500 francs ($30). For real fanatics of the briny there is a large ship's compass with heavy oak stand, which would certainly be an eyecatcher if not of much practical use, at 18,000 frames ($360).

From farther afield, there's a painted wood figurine of a saint from Portugal for 1,500 francs ($30), or a Chinese horse. From Belgium itself, there is an unwieldy but handsome bar with dazzling white marble counter above porcelain panels painted with pink, blue and yellow flowers, originally a late 19th-century butcher's slab, Art nouveau abounds, with tulip-shaped lamps on slender stalks, a munificence of nymphs cavorting round a metal table center, buttons and lewelry. One stand carries a choice of chatelaines, those graceful pendants dan-gling from a lady's belt to carry keys and fob watch on separate strands, in great demand by regular collectors and pants suit wearers.

The whole atmosphere here civilized and peaceful and there's parking space in an adjoining courtyard.

Farther down the avenue, No. 231 has been converted into a long arcade of stands on the ground floor. If at times there seems rather too crowded and motley a collection of bits and pieces at the stalls, rearrangement and reinforcement of are under way. aisles between stalls now are seldom free from strollers

The Baraar

It takes ten minutes from the Avenue Louise to penetrate deep into the old part of Brussels; in one of the small streets leading off the Grand'place, the is another hunting ground, the Antiques Bazaar. This groups a dozen or so stands in a 18thcentury house, several times renovated but still retaining its solid shell of tough old oak beams—watch your head here if you're tall—and the central wooden pillar where a spiral staircase once wound sinuously upwards. Coziness is the keynote and it feels medieval.

An array of dangling puppets greets the visitor, some in the Bruxellois tradition, others from Liège, where the wooden faces of the dolls are painted in a naive style. The prices of these range from 1,500 to 8,000 francs ($30-$60), depending on degree of antiquity and condition of

If you want to wave a witchdoctor's wand or a ring of old bones you'll find it. The Congo used to be a prolific source for curios like this and many a Belgian home is hung about with such trophies.

Local Color

To round out any curio hunt. two outdoor markets are a must, if only for local color. The Brussels Flea Market, in the Place du Jeu de Balle, is the plyot of the Marolles quarter, a semi-slum recently reprieved from total demolition and scheduled for a sprucing-up. The most animated day is a Sunday, when the entire square is covered with wares, often no more than a seedy selection of soiled broken and battered bits and pieces on a spread carpet, but sometimes a more sophisticated stall. Buyers and sellers mill about haphazardly and gather in clumps round the homemade braziers burning to keep out the cold, making a fine scene out of Bruegel

The concessionaires will provide a history for any object picked up for inspection and assure you that the great Belgian collectors come here for their loot. Each seller has to get a "brevet de nobilité" involving a police investigation before he can join the ranks of Flea Market dealers. "Business is booming" said one clothcapped character in mittens and steel-rimmed glasses. "Selling the stuff is no problem, it's tracking it down that takes time. And special fixir, of

From the Marolles, it's only a short step to the Place du Grand Sablon, in the Quartier des Arts, an area of elegant furniture and antique shops with its genteel and smaller market under striped awnings on the terraces of the church dominating the place. The Sablon market is good browsing ground for prints of all kinds, architectural, optical, witty, vulgar, historical, landscapes. Paris antiquaires have been known to make a special Saturday trip to Brussels to pick up prints for framing and resale in France. This one is only open at the weekends, all day Saturday and until 1 p.m. on Sunday.

The covered markets mentioned are open from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. every day except Mondays, and the Flea Market each morning except Monday.

News Analysis

By Albert L. Kraus NEW YORK, Jan. 28 (NYT). -The question in Detroit is how much deeper the very real recession enguifing the auto-mobile industry will go and how long it will last. This is not the first automobile recession. Nor has every bad year for Detroit meant bad year for the country as a whole. In 1951 and 1956, factory sales of passenger cars suf-fered drops of 20 and 26 percent after overbuilding in each of the previous years but there was no national recession. The drop of 30 percent in 1958 and of 17 percent in 1961, on the other hand, were clearly

By Alan Truscott

South reached a contract of six hearts after opening with a strong two-bid. He hoped for a grand slam when North made a positive response of two spades, but recognized the dan-ger that he might not be able to reach the North hand in a heart contract.

The bid of four diamonds was an attempt to indicate to North that some diamond support would be welcome. If North had held the diamond king, he would have continued to seven hearts.

South made a good try for the slam. After winning the first trick with the club ace, he made the unusual play of leading the heart deuce. He was willing to lose a heart trick if by doing so he could reach the dummy to discard his diamond losers on spade winners.

South naturally hoped that West would snatch the trick with the beart eight if he had that card. But West defended with great brilliance: He played the heart four without any revealing hesitation.

South's best chance at this point was that East began with a singleton eight of hearts, so he played the five from the dummy and lost to East's str. When East recovered from his astonishment at winning the first trump trick in such a manner, he returned a club and South eventually lost two more tricks, going down two in the

As the cards lie, South could actually make the slam if he led all his eight trumps immediately, abandoning the chance of getting to dummy with a throw a diamond South could establish a diamond trick for himself, and if West kept three diamonds and a club the declarer would cash his club winner and lead a low diamond for an endplay.

MR. SAMMLER'S PLANET

By Saul Bellow, Viking. 313 pp. $6.95.

Reviewed by Christopher Lehmann-Haupt

To extend the metaphor: Mr. Bellow's planet is layered over with a thick vegetation of elegant prose, in places hish, elsewhere tended and orderly, everywhere a thing to behold by itself. Beneath it is the crust of a plot—a seemingly absurd tale involving a Negro pick-pocket who exposes himself in an Upper West Side lobby, a pilfered scientific manuscript, a New Rochelle attic flooded in a search for money, a fatal brain hemorrhage, the backseat bar of a silver Rolls-Royce, feliatio in Mexico, philosophy in Westchester County. Beneath the crust is an assortment of characters, Bellowian urban types, angetlich and articulate: a neurotic operator descended from Tommy Wilhelm of "Seize the Day," a rutting female left over, perhaps from Maurice Herzog's fantasies, a dying gynecologist, a mad, toeless Israeli artist, And at the core, there to hold this fictional world together with his gravity, is Artur Sammler him-self, 70-plus, tall, small-headed, one-eyed Jewish journalist from Cracow by way of Bloomsbury and the holocaust—a Herzog gone exquisitely sane, and playing Prospero to his former role as mad King Lear.

Yet one keeps floating off "Mr. Sammler's Planet" and drifting away from Mr. Bellow's. They turn too slowly. Or their surfaces are too alippery to stand on. Or Mr. Sammler's gravitational pull is insufficient. Something is wrong.

Everything revolves around Mr. Sammler (his name is German for "collector"). He lives with a widowed niece in an apartment on West 90th Street ("Westward the Hudson came between Sammler and the great Spry industries of New Jersey.") He is adrift in the decaying city of the sixtles. He observes a black pickpocket magisterially plying his trade on West Side buses. The pickpocket follows Sammler home and assaults him by exposing his genitals ("a tube, a snake.") His kooky daughter, Shula, who imagines that Sammler is writing a memoir of his friendship with H. G. Wells, brings him a manuscript, "The Future of the Moon," which she has stolen from a visiting lecturer at Sammler's nephew and generous provider, Elya Gruner, lies stricken with an aneurysm in an East Side hospital, Sammler visits and consoles him. Gruner's children, Angela and Wallace, ask Sammler to intercede for them with Elya. Angela has offended her father by alienating a prospective husband with perverse sexual practices. Wallace its money to buy an airplane so he can start a business making aerial photographs of country homes and identifying plants on their grounds. Wallace and Angela both believe that Elya has hidden money in his New Rochelle home-money given to him by Mafia friends for performing abortions.

Is this all falling into a pat-tern? No? I'm not distorting it in summary, and I could go on. I could describe an interminable discussion between the Oriental author of "The Future of the Moon" and Mr. Sammler,

But I won't, because the kiness of the plot can only rationalized as a literary fi incination, as the noumenon. Sammler's vast mind. The sissue is not cash or culture space exploration, but the fut of the planet.

Artur Sammler, "confid-New York eccentrics ... regis of madness." lives in a por tory, a limbo between de and death. During the war and his wife were caught by Nazis. Sammler's eye knocked blind, his wife Lezarus-like, he climbed out a pile of buried corpses and for the remainder of the wat. a tomb. WASHINGTON -Last week I wrote about an astronaut trying to get from Stamford to New York on a commuter train. After the article. I received a letter from a lady on Long Island who said, "Why do you always write ... who take the trains? Why don't you write about the wives sit and wait for them to come bome?"

So here goes. This is Walter Cronkite in New York giving you

"Thank you. Walter. This is Mike Wallace and I'm standing in front of the small, modest home of Mrs. John Boyle, wife of one of three men who are risking their lives in man's

Impressionist Masterpieces To Be Sold

NEW YORK, Jan. 28 (UPI).

Three of the greatest French Impressionist paintings still in private hands will be sold in New York next month for the estate of the late W.W. Crocker of Burlingame, Calif., it was announced yesterday. Two of the paintings-"The Cypress and Tree in Flower and "The Laborer" by Vincent Van Gogh-may bring $1 millico or more each. according to art experts. The highest price ever paid for a van Gogh at auction was $441,000 in 1966 in London for a portrait.

Also scheduled for sale at the Parke-Bernet Galleries on Feb. 25 is Renoir's "Still Life of Plower and Barbary Figs," which has been exhibited at the Metropolitan Museum of Art. It is generally considered one of the greatest still lifes produced by the Impressionist school in the late 19th century. All three masterpleces have been on loan to the San Francisco Museum of Art in recent years. Mr. Crocker, a member of a ploneer California banking and railroad family, bought them in New York during World War II for an estimated one-tenth of their present

"At a time like this, how do you keep your spirits up?"
"Through prayar. The minister of our church is with us and he has been a great inspiration to everyone. Also, we've been grateful for the letters and postcards people have sent us wishing us well. Everyone has been so kind."

"Mrs. Clyne, did you want to say something?"

"Yes, I'd just like to add that while John and Bill and Terry arc getting all the glory, they couldn't make this trip without the thousands of dedicated Long Island Railroad employees, as well as the wonderful management team from Gov. Nelson Rockefeller on down. If it weren't for them, there would never have been a 5:06."

One last question and then I'll let you go back inside, ladies. I understand that President Richard Nixon called you at 6:30 tonight. Could you tell us what he said. Mrs. Boyle?" "He wanted us to know how proud he was of our husbands and he sald that if they made it home, he would like us all to come to the White House for a

The Maharajas' Fight for Survival

By R. Satakopan

NEW DELHI (AP).—Advertisements by India's national airline portray a chubby maharaja as the epitome of this country's hospitality. The real maharajas are finding the hospitality extended to them in their own country is fading and they face reduction or losses of govern-

"Maharaja" is from Sanskrit words meaning "great king." In the days of British imperial supremacy-called the raj-the maharajas were in reality princes and princelings. There are still 279 claiming the title, or a variant, but India's socialist revolution has moved to clip their dwindling privileges.

Prime Minister Indira Gandhi has said their conspicuous wealth and favored status can no longer be tolerated in a nation gripped by overwhelming problems of poverty, disease, unemployment Only the final blow from Parliament in the next few months remains. The princes, frightened at the prospect of losing their purses, are making a deter-mined effort to preserve what they can. Today's maharajas are direct heirs of 562 princes who, when independence came in 1947, signed away some 500,000 square miles containing 100 million subjects so the new India could be a cohesive nation. The princes' pensions now cost the government 48 million rupees ($6.4 million1 a year. In addition, the maharajas are exempt from all taxes, free from restrictive import and export laws, and are among the few permitted to maintain bank accounts abroad. They are entitled to free electricity and water. State governments must maintain armed guards at their residences and provide armed escorts on request. Gun salutes on arrival and departure from their former capitals are mandatory and their birthdays are celebrated as holidays in their respective

But India's masses began to compare their lot with that of the princes. The result was that the political power of the princes has fallen off to the point that the end of their pensions and privileges seems near.

Mrs. Gandhi has been under fire from the left as well as "young Turks" in her own Congress party, who are demanding an end to the privy purses without com-pensation. Mohan Dharia, a member of Parliament, says the purses are a feudal anachronism and that "the maharajas are using their privy purses to buy votes and corrupt the people."

This is an oblique reference to a tendency of the princes to throw in with the rightist Swatantra and Japa Sangh parties, who bave vowed to topple Mrs.

Gandhi's minority government. The prime minister has committed herself to the abolition of the purses during the three-month budgetary session of Parliament that begins at the end of February. Her party's national committee and the upper house of Parliament have adopted resolutions calling for the end

Home Minister Y. B. Chavan recently called in a group of leading princes to explain the government's position and to

One maharaja quipped that the government wanted "to find out from us how we can best commit suicide.

The princes' union, known as the Concord, questioned the right of the gov-ernment to "tear away unilaterally the sacred covenants solemnly entered into with the princes only two decades ago."

The government has two alternative plans to provide compensation. One would give the maharajas a lump sum in five installments free of taxes. The sum would equal 20 years of government subsidy of the present rate. The other plan would reduce the privy purses on a sliding scale so they disappear over a period of 20 years.

Two Recourses

Privately, the maharajas say they have two recourses to stall off the inevitable. An injunction from the Supreme Court might buy some time. Otherwise they hope to exploit the government's weakened position following last year's split in the Congress party and will work to see that either bill lacks the required twothirds majority.

Communist, Socialist and some independent members of Parliament may oppose either bill on the grounds that the princes should not receive any compensation. With support from rightist parties backing the princes, such a bill could easily lose and along with it Mrs. Gandhi's government might fall.

Mrs. Gandhi has written the princes asking them to accept her "reasonable offer." One has said he is ready to accept the deal "to make the best, when the going is good." PEOPLE:

David Eisenhower, President Nixon's son-in-law, is getting a taste of what it's like to live in the public eye. Parade Ma-gazine, a Sunday newspaper supplement, disclosed that as a high-school junior attending Exeter Prep in New Hampshire, David ran for the presidency of a "Teen Citizens for Johnson-Humphrey" group. David and his image-makers are apparently irked at the report, for Mrs. Nixon's office issued a statement explaining the whole incident. "It is indeed a fact that I ran." quoth David, "but it was a high school prank." He trailed badly in the voting.

In a heated argument over a game of billiards, Antonio Da Costa bit off part of Antonio Lopez's upper lip. Da Costa was sentenced to six months in prison.

Federal scientists at the Agricultural Research Service in Beltsville, Md., have discovered that slugs (snails without shells); like people, have an affinity for beer and will drink themselves to death. In a four-day test of the brew's trapping and killing potential in a greenhouse, 300 of the land mollusks crawled into a pan of beer to a mass suicide while a test pan of Metaldehyde, the usual slug bait, enticad only 28 unwary mollusks. Informal autopsies revealed that the slugs that went for the beer died of drowning.

Marie Louise Bassaler, who claimed to be the fattest woman in the world when she tipped the scales at 250 kilos (551 pounds), has died at the age of 69 in Brive, France, where she spent her last years living in a circus trailer. For more than 20 years, "Zizi," as she was known professionally, profited from a glandular disorder, making a living as the fat lady of a traveling circus. When her weight plummeted to 190 kilos (418 pounds), she showed her versatility by donning a false beard and becoming "Yola, the Bearded Lady."
